Top five benefits to digital administration

BBCS-4:R™ and BSRA™-4 now have digital administration and scoring options to make your life easier... and hopefully make evaluations more fun!

Here are some of the benefits you can expect when you switch to digital:

1 Accuracy

Results of an evaluation can help shape a child's path in school. Using digital scoring and reporting removes many sources of human error to help make the best decision for a child.

2

Fun and engaging

Using familiar technology makes testing feel game-like and fun for children!

3

Quick

These new assessments can be completed quickly, saving you time and keeping children happier and more engaged. The comprehensive BBCS-4:R takes between 25-40 minutes to complete and BSRA-4 only takes 10-20 minutes — leaving you time to do other things.

4

Durability

While they may be fragile, tablets in a protective case can hold up a lot better with repeated use than a paper manual and stimulus book (and they are easier to clean)!

Anytime, anywhere access

Young children are always on the move and now you can be too! Digital assessments enable you to move easily between buildings, classrooms, and homes, giving you access to test materials and digital manuals any time or anywhere (depending on platform functionality) — no matter where you are.

How does this all work?

Q-global

Q-global® is a web-based system for administering, scoring, and reporting on assessments. This enables you to administer assessments anywhere you have a reliable Internet connection.

Q-interactive

Q-interactive® is a 1:1 system that helps administer, score, and report assessments. One iPad device is used as a stimulus book; the evaluator uses the second iPad device for administration and scoring.
